

House Begins Rights Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House slipped smoothly into debate on the civil rights bill Friday with both sides urging a calm and orderly discussion of the inflammatory measure.

Southern opponents made no move to use the delaying tactics available to them and urged members to avoid "waving the flag of sectionalism" during the week or more the House will spend on the bill.

Just before the debate opened before a nearly full gallery, Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., predicted the bill would not be "seriously" amended during its progress through the House.

Viet Nam Chief Blasts de Gaulle

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — South Viet Nam's new strongman, Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, denounced French President Charles de Gaulle, vowed to personally head the war against the Communist Viet Cong, and brought his country Saturday to the verge of a diplomatic break with France.

Khanh said his prime responsibility would be vigorous prosecution of the war — as the United States has been urging — and added he would devote his full time to winning it.

Jack Robinson Joins Rocky

NEW YORK (AP) — Jackie Robinson, first Negro in major league baseball said Friday night he will resign his vice presidency in a restaurant chain to join the campaign staff of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

Robinson said he was "very happy with the civil rights program" of Rockefeller, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

He also said, "No Negro would vote for Barry Goldwater Republican senator from Arizona if he is nominated for president."

Rocky Enters W. Va. Primary

NASHUA, N.H. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller stepped up his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination Friday by announcing he would enter the West Virginia primary and by intensifying his criticisms of President Johnson.

The West Virginia primary May 12 is the fourth in which Rockefeller will seek support.

He challenged Sen. Barry Goldwater, the GOP nomination to tangle with him in the West Virginia fight.

Beckwith Jury Hears Mrs. Evers

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A city detective told Friday of finding a perfect sniper's nest in a honeysuckle niper overlooking the driveway where a rifle bullet killed Negro leader Medgar W. Evers.

Detective John Chambliss followed the slain civil rights leader's widow on the stand in the first day of testimony in Byron De La Beckwith's trial for murder in the ambush slaying last summer.

German Arrested For Killing Jews

DONN, Germany (AP) — A high West German police official who accompanied Chancellor Ludwig Erhard as bodyguard on his recent visit to President Johnson's Texas ranch was arrested Friday on war crimes charges, the Interior Ministry announced.

He is Ewald Peters, a bureau department head, and he is charged with having participated in mass executions of Jews in Russia in World War II, a ministry spokesman said.

Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Stubborn investment demand for selected blue chips pushed the stock market a bit higher Friday as trading slackened to the slowest pace since the holiday season.

The Dow Jones industrial average made a moderate gain of 1.90 at 785.34.

Volume fell to 4 million shares from 4.25 million Thursday. It was the smallest since Dec. 26, when 3.7 million shares changed hands.

U. S. Will Send Marines With Cyprus Brigade IF...

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States proposed Friday a Cyprus peace-keeping force of about 10,000 Western troops, including 1,000 to 2,000 U.S. Marines. It would go to the troubled island for three months.

Disputes from London, where Turkish and Greek Cypriots are in conference with the British, said both island factions called the U.S. proposal unacceptable.

State Department sources declined, however, to accept this unofficial word as meaning a final rejection of the U.S. proposal. The London dispatches said the U.S. plan will be presented officially to the Cypriots only after it has been acted upon by the governments of Greece and Turkey.

"The United States has about double its normal Marine strength on hand in the Mediterranean—two amphibious task forces totaling about 3,400 men. But whether Leathernecks will land at Cyprus in the next few days hinged on agreements still to be reached in complicated diplomatic sessions.

The U.S. proposal was approved by President Johnson, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and Undersecretary of State George W. Ball. Ball presented it to the British, Greek and Turkish ambassadors at the State Department on Friday morning.

Barry Says Missiles Need Atom Tests

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater has challenged Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to explain how the reliability of long-range missiles can be demonstrated without nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

The Arizona Senator said McNamara himself has expressed uncertainty about whether U.S. missile sites could withstand an enemy attack.

Goldwater said the Soviets almost certainly are studying missile reliability and it is "incredible that anyone would suggest that we deprive the American people of an equally careful study and perfectly clear answers."

Goldwater insisted that intercontinental ballistic missiles "are not as reliable as our national security demands."

Goldwater pressed the missile question Friday as he took his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination into the Midwest for the first time.

In a speech prepared for a $100-a-plate Republican dinner, Goldwater said the Johnson administration is "dangerously putting all of our nuclear eggs into one basket. I charge that there are holes in that basket."

"This is not to say that the missiles we have are not good," Goldwater said. "I am convinced that they are the best of their type. That's not the question. The question is how reliable they are."

Goldwater said McNamara, "the very man who tried to dodge my charge by resorting to a personal attack, has himself admitted and stated that he has doubts about the reliability of our ICBM systems."

Goldwater said McNamara testified before congressional committees that "there is a certain uncertainty in our evaluation of the reaction of our sites to certain forms of attack."

"If Secretary McNamara had doubts about the sites which are the home, you might say the heart, of our retaliatory missile force, let him answer whether he still has any doubts," Goldwater said. "Let him explain how those doubts can be resolved without the tests which he admitted we did not have—the tests we cannot have under the test ban treaty."

Must All Agree

These authoritative U.S. sources stressed that all the parties involved must accept key provisions of the U.S. plan if it is to be carried out.

Key elements of the U.S. plan were listed as:

1. Stationing on Cyprus of a peace-keeping force composed of troops from a number of NATO countries with a British in command.
2. The outside force would be withdrawn in three months. This period was deemed sufficient to calm things down enough so that an effort for a long-term solution of the problems between Cyprus' Greek majority population and Turkish minority could get under way.
3. The parties involved would agree on appointing a mediator to bring about a Cyprus solution. The mediator would not be an American or from one of the three powers guaranteeing Cyprus' independence — Britain, Greece or Turkey.

Shriver 'Not Running' For V.P.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver said Friday, "I don't think I'm the guy who's going to get asked" to run for vice president. He said his brother-in-law, Robert F. Kennedy, would be "terrible."

Shriver was questioned by reporters after appearing before the House Foreign Affairs Committee to ask for $115 million to run the Peace Corps during the next fiscal year.

He said he came here at the request of the late President John F. Kennedy "to try to do a job. I've tended to my knitting as closely as possible. I've made a point of this. I'm not running for anything."

He said he watches the opinion polls with as much interest as anyone. He has been high on their list of possible second-place candidates.

Supreme Court Judge Michael A. Musmanno

Democrats Back Judge Musmanno For Senate

HARRISBURG (AP) — Organization Democrats Friday endorsed Supreme Court Justice Michael A. Musmanno, 66, for the U.S. Senate, but at least one other party member plans to make a fight of it in the April 28 primary.

Musmanno, who started his political career as a Republican, was endorsed on the second ballot of a three-hour meeting of the 64-member Pennsylvania State Policy Committee.

Can't Ignore Call

Musmanno, always an oratorical speaker, said of his endorsement:

"If because of these troublesome times, there is a substantial feeling in the Commonwealth that I will, in the U.S. Senate, render greater service to my nation, my state, and the people who are the sovereigns of America, I cannot in conscience ignore the call to this greater service."

He said he considered it a great honor to campaign with President Johnson in "the war against poverty, in wiping out unemployment, in bringing greater industrial expansion to Pennsylvania."

He declined to say whether he would resign from the bench to campaign in the primary, although this is not a legal requirement.

The committee action was not unanimous.

Blatt, Shapp Votes

Genevieve Blatt, the first woman elected to statewide office in Pennsylvania, and Milton Shapp, Philadelphia industrialist also received votes on the second ballot.

Miss Blatt, now secretary of internal affairs, was obviously disappointed. She declined to comment except to say she intends to circulate nomination petitions for the nomination.

Shapp, who was elected to the policy group, at the start of the meeting, said:

"The events this afternoon do not change my position. I am still a candidate for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senator and I will enter the primary."

David B. Roberts, Allegheny County prothonotary, one of a total of eight candidates receiving votes on the first ballot, indicated earlier that he, too, will circulate nominating petitions.

In Shapp In Primary

Miss Blatt, state party secretary and a loyal organization worker for years, and Roberts are not expected to formally enter the primary, but Shapp has frequently said he is in to the finish.

The primary winner will oppose Republican Hugh Scott, who already has been endorsed by the GOP without opposition for a second six-year term in the Senate.

The policy committee also endorsed Aud. Gen. Thomas Z. Minchert and State Treasurer Grace M. Sloan in their bids to exchange offices and judges Sydney Hoffman of Philadelphia and Robert Lee Jacobs of Cumberland County for two Superior Court seats.

Insiders said there was no opposition to the endorsement of the four posts.

All but seven of the policy committee members, increased from 62 to 64 prior to the balloting, were present for the closed meeting.

Harmonious Meeting

Despite the length of the session and the number of candidates nominated for the senatorial slot, observers reported that the meeting was harmonious.

Even Shapp said it was "very interesting and democratic."

Otis B. Morse, state party chairman in a wire notifying Musmanno of his selection, said he was aware that the nomination would require great sacrifices of the man who has been a judge since 1930.

"However, we know of your dedication to the people's welfare and we are confident you will embrace this new responsibility with all the energies which have marked your extraordinarily brilliant career."

He is now the second ranking justice on the Supreme Court.

Ranger Should Crash Sunday In Moon's Sea Of Tranquility

LBJ Continues Big Farm Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson committed himself Friday to fighting for broader federal help for the nation's farmers but at less cost than this year's government spending in that field.

In a special message to Congress, Johnson stressed that farmers are caught in "a cruel cost-price squeeze" that is eating up rising gross farm income.

The deep-seated problems, he said, are caused by abundance, not scarcity and "they tax our ingenuity."

Most of his specific proposals already are embraced in bills now before Congress or being tested in pilot projects. His proposals for commodity programs are in line with those advanced last year by the late President John F. Kennedy and Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman.

Election Year Battle

But Johnson's views on specific farm problems and his firm support of a big federal role in agriculture provide a basis for election-year controversy. Many Republicans and some farm groups have demanded that the government make a gradual withdrawal from government price, production and marketing control programs.

Johnson saw his message as a major effort to reconcile "the needs of our farm families for a decent income with the needs of making this abundance available at reasonable prices for domestic consumption and export."

"Prosperity on the farm gives impetus to prosperity in the city," he said.

Help All Rural Areas

The President laid heavy emphasis on a desire to help not only farmers but all 55 million rural Americans. "Too many of these, he said, live in poverty and lack education, skills and earning power "which their talents warrant."

"In this message, in my housing message, and in the forthcoming special messages on poverty, education and health, I am proposing a series of actions which will assist rural America to realize the promise of its potential," Johnson said.

$3.8 Billion Price

The President put the price tag on his program in the budget message 10 days ago, when he asked $3.8 billion for over-all farm spending in the year starting next July 1. That's $1.1 billion below this year's total.

The new total includes about $1.7 billion for farm aid programs, compared with $1.9 billion this year. The remainder would go for research, food for peace and other programs which do not provide direct payments to farmers.

French President Charles de Gaulle

France For Neutralism In Asia

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle called Friday for neutralization of Southeast Asia—including Viet Nam — and said diplomatic relations with Red China are necessary to bring this about.

Reaction in Washington was icy, in Saigon angry.

The towering 74-year-old French leader told a crowded news conference French recognition of the Peking regime was "only recognizing the world as it is."

In Asia, he declared, "There is no peace, and no war, imaginable" without China being involved.

No neutrality treaty for Viet Nam could be worked out unless China signed it, he said.

South Viet Nam's new military strongman, Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, indignantly rejected a neutralist policy and said he had arrested three generals for plotting one with De Gaulle agents.

Khanh charged De Gaulle was "brutalizing" South Viet Nam and "deliberately" interfering in its affairs.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said "there has been no change in our determination to assist the people of Viet Nam to preserve their country against terror and aggression."

De Gaulle explained his recognition of Peking as a matter of common sense.

Cameras To Shoot First Close-Ups

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Spacecraft Ranger 6, its television cameras hopefully returning pictures to the instant of impact, should crash Sunday morning into the moon's Sea of Tranquility.

who are tracking and guiding No. 6, told a news conference it appears a perfect shot on evidence thus far — so good that a final course adjustment may not be necessary.

Successful Correction

Joyous scientists said Friday that if all goes well this latest of the trouble-plagued Ranger lunar explorers would rank as one of the most successful and significant of space experiments.

Its fruits could be the first clear, close-up photographs of the moon's pocked surface—in the very area where men perhaps will land a few years hence.

Sunday Collision

The fantastic-appearing Ranger 6, launched Thursday from Cape Kennedy, Fla., is expected to smash into the center of the moon's bright side at 4:24 a.m. EST Sunday.

The impact, which could cause either a flash of light or a cloud of dust or both, may be visible to large telescopes but not to the naked eye.

Scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, creators of the Ranger series and the people who are tracking and guiding No. 6, told a news conference it appears a perfect shot on evidence thus far — so good that a final course adjustment may not be necessary.

Remote Control

A mid-course correction by remote control — a brief blast from a 50-pound thrust rocket engine — early Friday put it almost precisely on the beam. The vehicle otherwise would have skimmed 2,000 miles to the moon's left, then curved within 600 miles of its back side.

The Sea of Tranquility is an area under consideration for Apollo moonship landings.

Ten minutes and 900 miles before impact, as Ranger 6 rushes toward its doom at 5,000 miles per hour, its six television cameras are supposed to start taking the first of more than 3,000 pictures.

The first photos, radioed constantly to earth, should show surface areas of 151,000- and 16,800-square miles, taken by two wide-angle cameras. Areas of 9,480 and 1,950 square miles are the targets of four narrow-angle cameras.

Close-Up Shots

Just before impact, the close-up pictures should show about half a square mile. Plans call for the wide-angle cameras to take 117 pictures each, the narrow-angle ones 714 each.

The photos from higher altitudes should be comparable to the best from early telescopes. The close shots should be incomparable.

Experts said they hope to release some of the Ranger pictures within 18 hours, presuming all goes well on the critical last phase of the space voyage.

The $84-pound craft was 17 hours and 101,000 miles out on its trip when the midcourse maneuver took place.

The blast of rocketry added 92 m.p.h. to Ranger's 4,343 m.p.h. speed, thus pulling its trajectory toward the center of the moon.

First Success

If all goes well, Ranger 6 would be the first fully successful shot in a program that has cost an estimated $168 million, based on a projected total of $250 million for nine Ranger launches.

Of the previous shots, Ranger 4 came closest to success when it hit the backside of the moon April 26, 1962, but its main radio failed.

The first two Rangers, test firings not intended to hit the moon, experienced technical difficulties in near-earth space. Two others were aimed at the moon but missed.

Some of the program's troubles recently were blamed on 35-cent electronic parts diodes—found to be faulty in an exhaustive check ordered after Ranger 5's failure.

In Ranger 6, these parts were replaced with diodes costing $5 to $6.

Kinzua Dam Evacuation Date Put Off

CORYDON, Pa. (AP) — Side-stepping a threatened showdown, the federal government with drew Friday its deadline for 13 families to leave the doomed river town of Corydon.

U.S. marshals had served final notices on the families earlier this week, effective Friday. The little town in northern Warren County is to be wiped out in a year or so when a flood control dam on the Allegheny River creates a huge reservoir.

However, in Pittsburgh U. S. Atty. Gustave Diamond said it had been decided the government would not force the families to move immediately. He added that arrangements were being made—without any deadline—for settlement of the families' dispute with the government and an orderly relocation.

Ass't. U.S. Atty. Richard E. Tucker accompanied Robert S. Morphy to Corydon to work out details with the families.

Suits In Court

Previously, several families had asserted they would not move pending settlement of their claims by the U.S. Corps of Army Engineers, which is constructing the dam south of Kinzua.

These holdout families feel they have not been offered fair value for their houses and land, and some have suits pending in federal court.

Other homes and businesses in Corydon already have been vacated by owners who accepted government settlements.

A number of empty houses in Corydon and Kinzua, also to disappear under river waters and almost entirely abandoned, have been the targets of vandals and thieves.

Scranton Calls Special Session On Feb. 11

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton announced Friday he will call a special session of the State Legislature Tuesday, Feb. 11, to consider revision of the Unemployment Compensation Law, Project 70, bind veterans pensions and eminent domain. The session will run concurrently with the regular session.

Scranton said he would issue his formal call Monday. It is expected that he will address a joint session of the legislature on the 11th, with live television and radio coverage in prospect.

It was necessary to call a special session because even-numbered-year meetings of the legislature are limited by law to budgetary matters.

Bids Opened For Mehl Plant

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. — Site demolition and construction bids on the proposed $750,000 Mehl Manufacturing Co. plant were opened yesterday in Bartlesville, Okla., but no contracts will be awarded for two weeks.

A spokesman for Phillips Petroleum, Mehl's parent company, said yesterday that bids from 20 contractors were received but they all must be studied before any low bid contract is awarded.

Plan March Construction

Mehl, a Cincinnati plastics manufacturing company hopes to start construction in March and have the plant built by July or August.

Montgomery F. Crowe, president of Pocono Mountains Industries, the industrial arm of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce, said the firm, which manufactures plastic bags, will employ 200 persons.

He said that will be the initial employment figure "and they are already talking about expansion."

The plant will be built on a 16-acre site of the old Delaware-Lackawanna Railroad roundhouse at Gravel Place, off Stokes Mill Rd. in Stroud Township.

Crowe said the cost of tearing down the several old buildings on the land will be split by Mehl and PMI. He said the razing costs would total about $5,000.

Freed By Firemen, Police

Man Trapped Hour In Truck Wreckage

SCOTRUN — Pocono Twp. firemen and State Police from the Mt. Pocono substation yesterday worked for more than one hour to free a Tannersville man from the wreckage of his truck.

Darwin H. Learn, 31, of Tannersville was trapped in his pickup truck after he rammed a trailer, driven by George I. Giles, 55, of Binghamton, N.Y., at the intersection of Rt. 611 and Interstate Rt. 80 in Scotrun.

Learn was freed by members of the Pocono Twp. Fire Co. who had to cut the steering column before they could get him out of the truck.

Fair Condition

State Police said Learn suffered multiple cuts and bruises of the face, bruises of the right shoulder and right knee, and a possible concussion. He was listed in fair condition in the General Hospital of Monroe County where he was taken by the Pocono Twp. ambulance.

According to State Police the accident occurred at 1:50 a.m. as the tractor-trailer operated by Giles was making a left turn from Rt. 611 on to the southbound ramp of Interstate Rt. 80.

Learn's truck struck the left front of the trailer and became wedged under it.

Witnesses told troopers that Learn's northbound truck was traveling at high speed on the wrong side of the highway. There were no skid marks on the highway police said.

Firemen were called to wash away gasoline that leaked from Learn's fuel tank. The firemen raised the trailer off the pickup, pulled the smaller vehicle back and then cut the wreckage to free the driver.

State Police estimate the total damage at $3,000.

Chlorine Added To School Water

CRESCO — Students in the Barrett Township Elementary Center in Cresco will be allowed to drink fountain water Monday if samples taken yesterday show no contamination.

Arthur M. Slee, owner of the Pocono Biological Laboratory and the consulting chemist for the Pocono Mountain Joint School District, said yesterday the Mountainhome Water Co. of Cresco has added heavy doses of chlorine to its water supply in the past few days.

Slee said results of samples taken throughout the area receiving water from the water company indicated that the entire water system had been contaminated.

He said, however, the added chlorine is sufficient to clear up the "medium contamination" that had existed.

William Shoemaker, Monroe County Sanitarian for the State Health Dept., concurred in Slee's appraisal of the situation.

He said the water had been contaminated but the heavy chlorination that is taking place has cleared the situation as far as he is concerned.

When chlorine, an acid, is added to water in large quantities it "burns up" all the bacteria that is causing the contamination.

Willis Dunlap, supervising principal of the Pocono Jointure, said yesterday that he will be guided by Slee's recommendation on the use of the water on Monday.

Supervised Drinking

Since Monday, when the contamination was first uncovered, water in the Barrett school has been boiled and all drinking has been supervised by the school nurse.

Slee, who checks the water supply and cafeteria facilities at all jointure schools once a month, discovered the contamination when he was taken a routine sampling of the school's water.

Robert Hawk of Cresco, owner of the water company, said last night, "I hit the system hard with chlorine about 11 a.m. Thursday and kept it up until 8 a.m. Friday."

He said he increased his rate of chlorination from .35 parts per million to 8 ppm. "The situation is all cleared up," he said.

Parke W. Unangst

Ex-GOP Head Will Seek State Post

EAST STROUDSBURG — Parke W. Unangst, former Monroe County Republican chairman, announced yesterday that he is a candidate for Republican state committeeman.

Unangst is the first person in either party to publicly announce his candidacy. The committeemen from both parties will be chosen at the primary election on April 28.

The post is now held by Harold B. Kresge, Republican county chairman, who said Thursday night he would not seek reelection for the state committee. Kresge said that to hold the two positions would be "improper."

Shawnee Resident

Unangst, a Shawnee resident and the owner of Kresge's Drug Store in East Stroudsburg, was the first Republican ever elected to council in Stroudsburg's First Ward and as a school director in Smithfield Township.

In making his announcement, Unangst said he will support whoever is nominated by the Republican party in the November general election.

State committeeman is a two year term.

West End Demos Open Doors To GOP

SAYLORSBURG — All Republicans told to leave the Republican party by Harold Kresge are urged to change their registration and join the West End Democratic Assn.

Daniel Smith, registration chairman of the West End Democratic Assn., told a meeting last night at Saylors Lake, "I urge all the Republicans to leave their party or asked to leave their party by Harold Kresge (GOP county chairman) at a recent meeting to contact me and I will arrange transportation to and from the county courthouse for you to change your registration."

Smith said, speaking to the Democrats who have or do split their vote at elections, "I want all these Democrats to remain members of the party, and that he nor any other Democratic registration worker threatens their membership in the party."

At another point in the meeting a short discussion was held on Kresge's accusations on the operations of the Department of Public Assistance office and its head, Miss Virginia Katsaromitos.

Smith was critical of the change.

The next meeting will be held in February at a time and place to be announced.

Rear Tires On Trailer Catch On Fire

TANNERSVILLE — Pocono Twp. Volunteer Fire Co. was called yesterday at 3:50 a.m. to extinguish a burning trailer on Interstate Rt. 80 two miles south of the Scotrun entrance.

Willard Anglemeyer, spokesman for the fire company, said the rear tires of a tractor-trailer, driven by Louis Morris of Stroudsburg, caught fire as he was traveling south on Interstate 80 when he saw the fire.

He pulled off the highway, discontinued his tractor from the trailer and drove to a phone to place the call to the firehouse.

Anglemeyer said the tires apparently started burning due to one or both being flat. The tires set the wooden floor of the trailer on fire, but damage was limited to the tires on the trailer.

The unit is owned by the Capital Scrap Iron Co. of Stroudsburg.

Stroudsburg Man Jailed

STROUDSBURG — James H. Heckman, 39, of 1216 W. Main St., Stroudsburg, was committed to Monroe County Jail Thursday in default of $500 bail.

Heckman is charged with assault and battery on the oath of Adelaide LaBar.

Detrick Charges Kresge 'Violating Rules, Lying'

STROUDSBURG — John E. Detrick, a Republican committeeman from Smithfield Township, last night charged the Republican county chairman with "constantly violating party rules and lying" to GOP faithful.

The charges erupted in the wake of a challenge hurled at Detrick Thursday night by Harold B. Kresge, county GOP chief. At a Republican county committee meeting, Kresge told Detrick to follow his orders or join the Democratic Party.

The argument was over the way Kresge is handling Republican state patronage and handing out jobs.

Community Conference Told

Law Gives County Planners Power Over Subdivisions

EAST STROUDSBURG — One of the major responsibilities of a county planning commission under Pennsylvania law is the review and approval of plans for subdivision of land within the county.

Stanford Lembeck of Bellant and Claus, Scranton planning consultants, explained this power at the second community planning conference for Monroe County at East Stroudsburg State College Thursday night.

There are six more Thursday night sessions of the conference arranged by the Cooperative Extension Service of Pennsylvania State University. More than 80 have attended the first two meetings.

Lembeck said the county planning commission must approve all subdivisions of land into three or more lots within the county before such plans can be legally filed with the county recorder of deeds.

This power does not apply to subdivision plans for land within boroughs or townships which already have subdivision regulations.

Lembeck said there are planning commissions in 700 of the 2,700 political jurisdictions in Pennsylvania, but he knew of no county planning commission which has adopted county-wide zoning regulations.

No Concern With Zoning

"A county planning commission cannot and should not be concerned with zoning," Lembeck said.

The county planning commission should develop general county-wide plans for future growth and improvement and leave specific zoning laws to townships or boroughs which know their own problems best.

In order to have the zoning power, Lembeck said, a county planning commission would have to be designated a planning and zoning commission by the county commissioners.

Federal Aid

Lembeck explained the federal "701 Program" for planning assistance to local communities, under which Monroe County could receive two-thirds federal grants if it puts up one-third itself for county planning expenses.

Donald DeOtte of Cherry Valley, president of the Hamilton Township Civic League, asked what control the federal government would have over township or county planning commissions if they took federal planning aid.

Lembeck said the federal government would have none, but the state government would exercise fiscal control by "making sure that the planning work is done competently."

He explained that the Bureau of Community Development of the State Department of Commerce would receive the federal aid and also the one-third share from a county or township governing body. The bureau would then pay planning consultants or other technical expenses directly, after being satisfied of its quality.

Lembeck said this control is fiscal and does not extend to what is in the plan.

DeOtte then asked if the state would pay out the money for planning work not done by state-approved planning consultants.

"I think they would turn down work not undertaken by professionals," Lembeck said. He added he was referring to traffic studies, financial surveys, map-making and other technical work that requires professional training.

"In most instances a planning consultant does about 100 per cent of the technical work," Lembeck said.

$10,000 For 18 To 24 Months

When asked how much money would be needed to hire professional planning consultants, he said $10,000 would carry a township through an 18 to 24-month period of planning but that the same amount would provide very little for a county over a 12-month period.

He was then asked if a professional planner hired by a county planning commission could do planning work for a township within the county and have that work qualify for federal planning aid.

Lembeck said, "Yes, much of his salary for time devoted to pure planning and not to administration or review of plans could be paid for by the federal government."

But he issued a warning against the lure of federal aid: "Don't go into it because you can get nice financing. You must first be convinced that planning is needed and will help your community."

In another comment, he said planning and zoning should be coordinated within a county and between the county and contiguous areas.

"If not, your county can be planning chaos," Lembeck said.

But there should be no duplication between county and township or borough planning, he said. The county should plan county and state roads, for instance, while the borough or township must plan for its own roads and streets.

Airfield At Depot Renamed

TOBYHANNA — Tobyhanna Army Depot airfield yesterday was renamed the Betty Army Airfield in honor of Capt. Clifford Betts who died in a helicopter crash Aug. 23, 1961.

Capt. Betts, then serving as Depot Aviation Officer, was returning from a search for a missing plane in the Williamsport area when the H-21 helicopter he was flying crashed in the thick woods near Gouldsboro. A heavy fog blanketed the Poconos at the time.

At the dedication ceremonies at the airfield Col. M. J. Reichel, depot commander, said, "No soldier could have died a more honorable death."

Present at the ceremonies were the mother of the late Capt. Betts, Mrs. Edna Jean Bolin of Zanesville, Ohio; a brother, Ronald Bolin of Columbus, Ohio; and an aunt, Mrs. L. Clewell of Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Bolin helped pull a string that unveiled the sign bearing the new name of the airfield.

Col. Reichel also presented Mrs. Bolin with a plaque in memory of the occasion.

Several hundred depot soldiers and civilians braved the freezing temperature to view the ceremony.

Anne Shafer Struck By Car In Philly

PHILADELPHIA — Miss Anne E. Shafer, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Floyd Shafer of Stroudsburg RD 5, was struck by a car yesterday at 9 a.m. as she crossed Broad St., Philadelphia.

Miss Shafer, a junior at Temple University Medical School, was enroute from the medical school to Temple University Hospital at the time of the accident.

Police said she was thrown 15 feet through the air after being struck.

Her father, Dr. Floyd Shafer, said, "I have been told by officials at the hospital in Philadelphia that Anne suffered a fractured pelvis and a hairline crack of the sacrum. This will require her to remain in bed for at least four weeks. My wife and I will leave for the hospital today."

Miss Shafer is a graduate of Stroud Union High School and Mt. Holyoke College, Holyoke, Mass.

Detrick claims he speaks for a group of committeemen and women who are in the majority on the county GOP committee.

He said Kresge is attempting to "stack the deck in his favor" by electing committee personnel who will back his decisions.

Kresge, according to the party's by-laws, must call a meeting to elect a county chairman 30 days after the April 28 primary.

Detrick said Kresge will not be elected to succeed himself in a post "he was appointed to."

Political Gifts

Former President Dwight Eisenhower said this week that we should not be "too ready to throw stones" at high government officials who accept gifts while in office.

He was referring to the present controversy over a stereophonic phonograph set given to President Lyndon Johnson when he was a senator by an insurance salesman who had sold a total of $200,000 insurance on Johnson's life.

But he was also commenting on the general problem faced by all government officials from the courthouse to Washington.

He said it is "a matter of judgment, of self-restraint and the confidence you have in someone's integrity." He added that the "rule of reason" should stop a government official from taking money or becoming "a kept man."

There is more than the rule of reason that should stop a man from taking money while in public office. There are laws against it if the gift is made to influence a decision or vote.

There should be more clear laws, or codes of ethics, or generally-accepted rules of behavior by public officials in the area of accepting gifts or money.

The simplest solution would be to forbid the acceptance of gifts or money by any public official at any level of government from anyone but close friends or family members. Such a law would be difficult to enforce, but it would set a standard of behavior and draw a clear line in a field where confusion exists.

We do not agree with former President Eisenhower that this question should be left to a public official's judgment or self-restraint.

Why should a U.S. Senator, or a local mayor, or the President of the United States accept or be asked to accept expensive gifts simply because he holds that office?

There are of course ceremonial occasions on which the President of the United States or high government officials, must accept gifts like an albino elephant, an Arabian horse, or a pony from a foreign dignitary rather than have it appear that he or the United States does not appreciate the thought behind the gift.

But this excuse for accepting gifts does not apply to the more common practice in American political life of taking gifts from all sorts of people and interests who have an axe to grind, a vote to win, a decision to influence.

Walter Lippmann

U.S. In Cyprus

By Walter Lippmann

Cyprus is an island off the coast of Turkey which was ceded to Great Britain by the Turks in 1878 and made independent on Aug. 16, 1960. A sizable majority of the inhabitants are, however, Greeks, and the crucial problem of Cyprus is how the Turkish minority is to live in peace with the Greek majority.

The two communities don't want to live with each other. The Greek Cypriotes want union with Greece. The Turkish Cypriotes want partition. Britain would like to find a way for the two communities to co-exist and cooperate.

It would have been a marvel if the accords reached in 1959 had worked. For co-existence under one government requires a high degree of political maturity based on long habit under an accepted authority.

Cyprus is not politically mature, as is Switzerland, with its four ethnic communities and Belgium with its two communities. The unity of separate communities has not been possible in Ireland, in Palestine and in India, and it has now been shown that it is not workable in Cyprus.

The problem which Britain has placed before us is what to do about the breakdown of the 1960 experiment. That it has broken down is shown by the fact that the British government is asking the United States and other NATO countries for military help in keeping order in Cyprus.

For there is immediate danger of a civil war among the Cypriotes in which Turkey would intervene to protect the Turkish community and Greece would intervene to resist the Turkish intervention.

The alternatives to civil war are for Britain to police the whole island, an operation which would take, I am told, from 10,000 to 20,000 troops, or for the United States to join with other allied countries to police the island.

The first alternative, an enlarged British intervention, is certain to be impossible for the home government in London.

For it does not dare to introduce conscription with an election just ahead, and without conscription the British do not have the forces to meet all their commitments from Germany to East Africa to the Middle East to Singapore and Borneo.

Although Britain is liquidating the empire, it is a long way from being able to disengauge itself from the many responsibilities of empire. There is no use pretending that countries which conscript their troops relish being called upon to make up the military deficit which Britain is running.

Nevertheless, unattractive as is the prospect of American involvement, there is no doubt that massacres, civil war and war between Turkey and Greece must be prevented. Our reservations do not arise from the risk of being involved in another indecisive guerrilla war as in Viet Nam.

If there is to be allied intervention, it can be massive enough to police the island and protect both communities. Since Cyprus is an island, this should be feasible.

The real problem is to decide who is to decide how Cyprus is to be governed in the future. In my opinion, the military risk of participation in a peace-keeping operation is not a very great risk.

What the United States has to worry about are the moral and political risks of a new responsibility for which we are unprepared and in which we have only a secondary national interest.

For this reason, we should be very careful not to let the political responsibility for Cyprus become ours alone. We should insist that the responsibility be distributed and shared at least among the NATO countries.

I say this because no global issue is involved which would call for the intervention of the United Nations. We should need the approval both of Greece and of Turkey and then of France, West Germany and Italy.

It is possible that the quickening buildup of Gov. Scranton for the Republican nomination results from the realists high up in the Republican party who say to themselves:

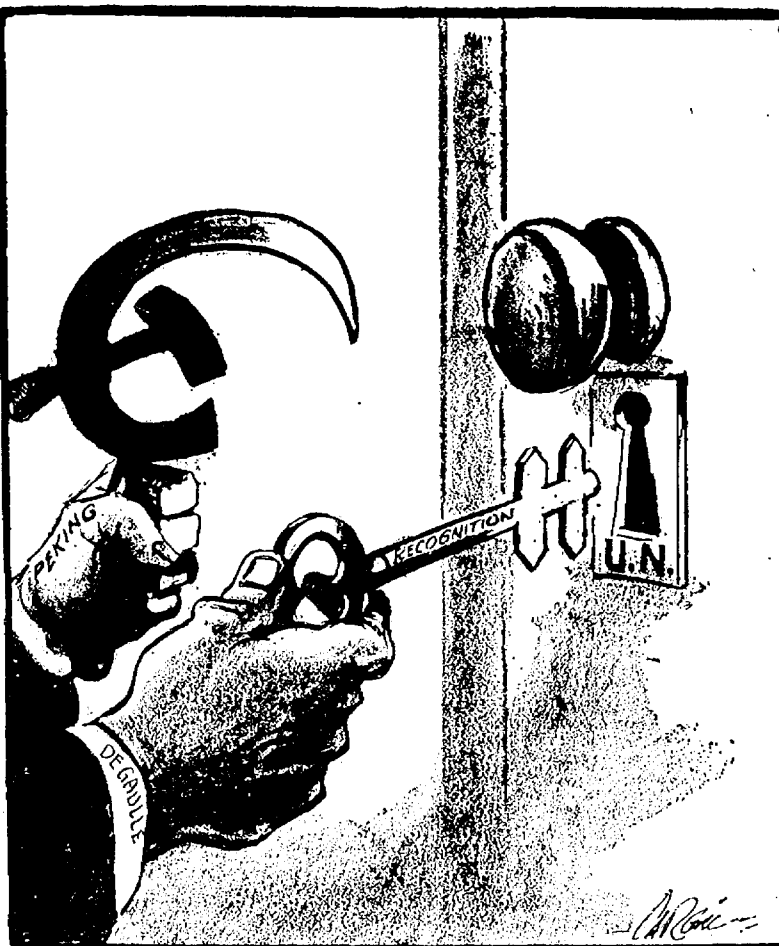

(1) Unless Johnson stubs his toe badly he can't be beaten.

(2) If he can't be beaten (A) we will have no new power with Goldwater as he will be less a possibility in 1968.

(3) We don't want the Rockefeller element to capture the leadership of the party as he would if nominated.

(4) Nixon is an enigma and anyway if he is defeated he would be forever through.

(5) Therefore why not expose Scranton to the American voter. A good liberal guy with no known enemies. Even in defeat the party will have built up a potential "make-chance-guy" who would have good chance to defeat Johnson in 1968.

Chinese Open Door Policy

Federal Power Commission Seeks Cheaper Electricity

By Congressional Quarterly WASHINGTON (CQ) — Plenty of cheap power to light all American homes and to run American factories is in prospect in the next decade, perhaps sooner.

Scientists and engineers have already learned how to build huge power plants to make millions of kilowatt hours of electricity, and how to move the power over big power lines to homes, offices, and factories.

But only a few big utilities in this country have been actually building these big plants and lines to date.

So the Federal Power Commission plans to release a report in late spring of 1964 to tell Congress, the industry and the public how this can be done by 1970, 1975 and 1980.

It will be based on a national power survey that FPC has been conducting since January, 1962.

The survey is based on the theory that the nation's 3,600 public and private power systems should work together to build a national network of giant power plants and transmission lines to obtain maximum efficiency at the lowest possible cost.

Exciting Activity FPC Commissioner David S. Black has called the national power survey "the most exciting area of new activity" being carried on by FPC.

The concept of tying America together into one big public-private power network with big regional interties has fired the imagination of the nation's power leaders.

"One cannot any more hold back the building of such interties than could the village blacksmith retard the manufacture of the automobile," according to Alex Radin of the American Public Power Association.

Chairman Joseph C. Swidler decided that the Federal Power Commission should provide the leadership and a master plan to help the industry build a coast-to-coast generating and transmission network. The Administration asked for and received the money from Congress in 1962 to make the national power survey.

National Interest

Swidler has been connected with the power field in one capacity or another for nearly 35 years. He is a former general counsel of the Tennessee Valley Authority, the nation's largest utility, and he has been the attorney for many public power and rural cooperative systems.

Even before he became FPC chairman in 1961, Swidler said that he was "distressed and appalled by the fact that there was no national perspective at all in the power industry."

With 3,600 separate systems in our industry, it grew like topsy. Even among the biggest, there are 100 separate centers of decision," Swidler told Congressional Quarterly in an interview.

Furthermore, decisions to build power plants often have been based on internal pressures within power companies rather than on long-range planning and economic considerations, Swidler said.

Company "A" might build a steam plant for tax reasons. Company "B" might have a policy of building all steam plants in the same general location so that the official in charge of their operation could inspect them daily.

Company "C" might build a steam plant in a certain location because it was "on the outs" with Company "D". There was no way of establishing an economic common standard of interest to stimulate low-cost power, Swidler said.

The national power survey will provide a blueprint, based on costs, for the industry to determine the most likely locations and size of new power plants and extra high voltage transmission lines.

With the national power needs so determined, "the management within the industry will be held to a standard of national interest," Swidler stated. He emphasized that it will be up to industry to implement the survey.

Impact on Economy With the power industry expected to triple or quadruple in size by 1980 and to spend nearly $100 billion for generating plants and transmission facilities in the 1960-1980 period, the FPC report on its national power survey could have a profound impact on the industry and the national economy. It could help make U.S. industry more competitive in foreign markets.

Its goals are to provide plenty of cheap power for the nation's households and industries, to provide a better standard of living for all Americans, more job opportunities and industrial development in all areas of the country. Cooperation within industry is vital if these goals are to be met. New legislation may also be needed.

DEAR MR. EDITOR:

Father Says Knife Warning Not 'Misunderstanding'

Editor, The Daily Record: In reply to Mayor Joseph Small's statement in The Daily Record Monday, Jan. 27, that the telephone call I received telling me to keep my son home from school was all a "misunderstanding," I say Mayor Small was not speaking for me.

Here is what happened on Thursday when I received all the information concerning threats made about my 17-year-old son, Brent.

The mother of one of the boys involved, called me on Thursday night and said, "Your son hit my son and there undoubtedly will be trouble over it."

She said her son was on probation and any trouble he gets in would be really serious. This phone call meant nothing to me. I hung up and forgot about it. I just thought it was trouble between two boys.

From some of the information I got from the phone call and from my son I called a father of one of the other boys who was supposed to be involved.

The father said, "Don, where is your son?" When I replied that he was home the man continued:

"Good, keep him there, because I hear there are at least five boys out now hoping he comes to Stroudsburg."

The father said they are all a bunch of punks and said they all carry knives. I said, "Don't tell me they would use a knife just because my son snatched the lad that called him a foul name." He said, "Look, I guess you don't know them like I do."

Does this sound like I was only assuming the boys meant to do something violent?

My wife was listening on an extension phone all through the conversation. She said, "Why don't we have them picked up by the police and have the police give them a good scare and forget the whole mess."

He said, "Look, Mrs. Cramer, they are no more afraid of the police than they are of you and me. They have some stupid code of honor to uphold."

The father said he was ready to have the boys put right back where they came from. I wanted no part in that. As far as I am concerned the boys aren't nearly as bad as they are made out to be.

During the hearing, Saturday, the boys said they were only out to get even, but had no intentions of using a knife. I really believe they were sincere and in fact, they have not hurt my son.

The whole matter was dropped then as far as I was concerned until I read Monday's paper in which Mayor Small was reported to have said that I misinterpreted the phone call.

I do not appreciate it when I am made to look like an imbecile, as I understood the phone call very clearly. I would say that the call was more of warning than a threat.

Spitting — Insane, Crude Male Habit

Editor, The Daily Record:

Will you kindly add a few words to mine on the subject of spitting?

This habit which seems to be attributed exclusively to male gender is not only unsanitary but it is also infantile. Little children step in the saliva, drag it into the homes, handle their shoes and wind up with the germs in their mouths.

The insane and crude male seem to be the objective offenders. Nine times out of ten one will not see an intelligent, well-mannered man guilty of this offense.

I will, no doubt, make many enemies through this letter. Nevertheless, facts must be put plainly sometimes in order to take effect.

Editor, The Daily Record:

In reading of the corruption in the Philadelphia traffic courts in your paper brought to mind a letter I too received back in 1961.

It told me to pay a $15 fine or be brought to Philadelphia for a hearing. I was supposed to have parked illegally on a one-way street on such and such a date.

Well I was not in Philadelphia in the year 1961. I took the letter to the State Police and explained this.

They told me to disregard the letter. I did and never heard from them again.

I'm a cute little bundle, All dressed up in white, Then laid out in rows, A clean tempting sight.

You'll like me I'm sure, When first we have met; By name you will know me, I'm called "cigarette."

At first you will meet me By chance with a friend; I'll be offered to you For he would not offend.

You'll like my aroma, My pack you'll adore, And so you will smoke me In time, more and more.

You're attracted to me By what my ads say, So now you are smoking me Two packs-a-day.

I knew that I'd win When you'd smoked two or three, For I have fooled millions And they're slaves to me.

No respect for the sex, Might be singer or dancer, Take warning, my friends, I'm a cause of lung cancer.

I have stained all your fingers And even your thumbs; So now you're my victim With "nicotine lungs."

Both young and old Are my victims today, My victims for life, They can't get away.

Easton Bridge Needs Tolls

MORRISVILLE, Pa. (AP) — The Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission says the Easton to Phillipsburg, N. J., bridge cannot be toll-free except at a prohibitive loss.

Charging 10 cents for passenger cars and $1 for trucks, the bridge authorities collect $2.5 million a year in tolls. The commission said Thursday that it owes $28 million, and that several new projects will increase the indebtedness still more.

Army Guard Shifts Training

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army National Guard is beginning a new training schedule, shifting from training one evening a week to a weekend of training each month.

The new program, first announced last fall at a National Guard Association conference in Philadelphia, is going into test in 11 states.

Original plans were to try out the program in nine states — Arkansas, California, Colorado, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, New Jersey, South Carolina and Tennessee. However, two states, Idaho and Maine, have since been authorized to go on the new schedule.

Pipe-Smoking Also Dangerous

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dr. Luther L. Terry, the surgeon general of the U.S. said Thursday that a man who switches from cigarettes to pipe-smoking runs the risk of lung cancer.

The reason, he said, is because the inveterate cigarette smoker, by force of long habit, will be apt to continue to inhale even after the switchover.

Terry raised the tobacco industry for its reaction to the government report linking cigarette smoking to cancer.

"They played it straight as possible," he said. "They have reacted with integrity and have not denied any of the basic indications in the report."

Committeeman Will Not Run

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dr. Robert L. Johnson, former chancellor of Temple University, said Thursday he will not seek reelection as one of Pennsylvania's two members of the Republican National Committee.

"I have completed my mission and I am anxious to retire this year," Johnson said. "I have already notified Gov. Scranton of my intentions."

Bethlehem Steel Earnings Climb

NEW YORK (AP) -- Bethlehem Steel Corp. reported increased earnings Thursday and also named Edmund F. Martin, 60, to succeed Arthur B. Homer as chairman and chief executive officer.

Martin, who has been vice chairman of the board since last August when he moved up from president, will take over the chief executive's office April 14 when Homer retires on his 68th birthday under a newly adopted retirement plan.

Stewart S. Cort, 52, was installed as president, and reported earnings climbed to $2,462,212 or $2.11 a share from $88,677,761 or $1.80 a share in 1962.

Roberts has until Feb. 18 to obtain at least 100 signatures from registered Democrats for the April 28 primary. He said he was positive he could get signatures from the other 66 counties.

"I'm confident I can beat Hugh Scott," Roberts commented.

STROUDSBURG — Report cards for the second quarter of the academic year in the Stroud Union schools will be issued to students on Monday, Feb. 3.

The high school report card, a carbonized, overleaf system, not only shows a student's subjects being taken but also gives figures on each student's attendance for the second quarter of the year and provides opportunity for comments to be made by teachers in the way of application of code statements or through direct inscription on the cards.

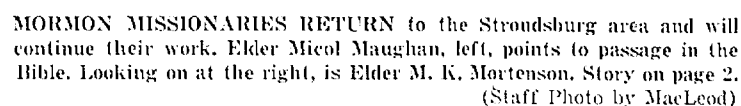

Report cards will also be issued to students in the district elementary schools. Children will take the cards to parents for their examination and signature.

The signed cards must be returned to teachers.

Elementary reports provide marks in subjects, give information on attendance and allow space for teachers to make comments on children's progress.

Teachers of the district schools entered their marks during the week of Jan. 27, completing this task on Friday, Jan. 31.

Reports are issued in the Stroud Union schools four times per year, the first report was issued November 18, the third and fourth quarter reports will be issued April 13 and June 12 respectively.

charges that Butz "carelessly and negligently" allowed the heifer to remain unattended and loose on a public highway. The accident occurred Oct. 28, 1963 on Rt. 715 in Jackson Twp.

One of the keys to a boy's character is his choice of heroes.

For a hero is more than a portrait on the wall. A hero is an ideal — a blueprint of greatness.

And where does a boy find his heroes?

He finds them in books and on the playing field . . . in his school, his family, his Church.

The Church's contribution to a child's gallery of heroes is unique.

Bible study and religious education not only introduce him to the greatest lives ever lived . . . but they teach him how to build the same qualities of heroism into his own life.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL • ALL FOR THE CHURCH

"The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither our civilization nor our people can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake, (2) For his children's sake, (3) For the sake of his community and nation, (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

The end of a busy week usually finds me dragging and the fact that the stories of coming events pouring in on Friday usually indicate an even busier week ahead doesn't help restore vitality, exactly. But past experience has taught me that thinking about work that has to be done is a lot more tiring than doing it.

Actually, there are some fascinating programs coming up next week. The Junior Women who are also members of AAUW will be getting a double dose of culture early in the week, what with poetry reading from Poe on Monday night and art on Tuesday night.

The little biographies that accompany announcements of speakers are always fascinating to me. Especially when the speakers are local. For instance, the biography of William Hope explains at least in part, how come a man from Chattanooga got to be an exchange French professor. How he got involved in the poetry of Poe should be answered on Monday night.

And when the Juniors announce a free and open discussion after their art panel, they probably will have just that, I decided, after looking over the panel of artists, none of whom can be described as run-of-the-mill.

As a matter of fact, I don't know very many run-of-the-mill people. Everybody I really get to know seems to have some little quirk of personality that keeps me from fitting them into any of the stock patterns. Or maybe the "quirk" is in the eye of the beholder.

Anyway, it makes for a very interesting life. And surprising. For instance, it seems impossible that Laura Fabel is retiring after 40 years of clerking. To me, Miss Fabel will be about 30 years old, look well in knickers, and be an expert on fires just right for roasting marshmallows.

That's about how old she must have been when she was the leader of our Girl Scout troop, when we had our penies back of St. John's Lutheran Church or at the Covered Bridge and drove her crazy at Deerbone.

DEAR OLLIE: Exhort Pops to go after a job selling memberships to trade and civic organizations. Early Days Of Storekeeping Enliven Retirement Dinner

Stroudsburg — Misses Laura Fabel and Beatrice Gorgy, both of whom have been associated with the 88 year-old Wyckoff Department Store more than forty years, were honored at dinner Thursday night in the Regina Suite of the Penn-Stroud Hotel by Ernest H. Wyckoff, head of the Wyckoff Store Family, and Mrs. Wyckoff. There were 21 in addition to the guests of honor, all but one being members of the Wyckoff store's 47 Year Club, composed of personnel, still active, who have been on the payroll a quarter of a century or more.

Seated at the head of the table with Mr. Wyckoff, who joined the store family in 1911, was Henry Buck, semi-retired, who came to Wyckoff's on Nov. 15 of that same year. Henry, who headed Wyckoff's delivery service for many years, delighted the group with his memories of the various stages in store development, when delivery was by various means: bicycle, horse and buggy, motorcycle, Blanders truck, and some thing called F and M which, Tommy Riuchant, vowed meant "fix every Monday". Tommy joined the store family in July in 1914, and recalls being assigned to the mountain areas to solicit orders in the days before every one used the telephone. It was nothing to come back at day's end with a thousand dollars in one's pocket.

The oldest Wyckoff "store family" member present in point of service was Selma Ruster, who served in various capacities and was one of the best-loved of all Wyckoff personnel when she retired some years ago as director of personnel. Selma joined Wyckoff's staff back in '09 as a slip of a teenager. With her droll humor she kept the party in high spirits as she recalled the store during transitional periods, and the many long-gone customers and co-workers who enriched Wyckoff history with their comments, eccentricities, wisdom and unfailing loyalty. The names of Aunt Anna Wyckoff, Sue Van Why, Nellie Melchner, Marian Rau, Oscar Geissinger, and many, many others, entered into the conversation as memories were drawn out, and photographs were circulated.

Perhaps the most amusing of rarely recent memories concerned Moe and Betts, the prankish monkeys that were once a featured attraction in the basement store, now occupied by Sears - Roebuck. Moe and Betts had the distracting habit of escaping their cages on occasional wild evenings, and engaging in exasperating antics. On one occasion they dumped the sugar bowls and filled them with salt. On other, they poured soap into the aquarium, killing the fish. Their days at the store were numbered.

The sun and substance of "looking back" to store parties, ice skating frolics, sleighrides, barbecues, parades, and such, was summed up by Miss Ruster who advised the honored guests from personal experience that, "There is much to be said for retirement. And there are two sides. It's wonderful on those mornings when you awaken to hear the sleet against the window. No worry about 'Will I make my day today'. It's wonderful too when Easter comes early and you can top last year's figures without effort. Oh, what a headache for the month following! The other side is — you'll miss the contacts. All those grand people you have worked with and wait upon."

CARROT AND BEEF STEW to put the man of the house in good humor is made with beef and fresh carrots.

Both Your Valentine And Bugs Bunny Benefit From Diet Rich In Carrots

By Linda Pipher
Daily Record Home Economist

Stroudsburg — The reason Bugs Bunny has always been able to have the last laugh in all his capers is because he has such good vision. And do you know why he has such good vision? Because his favorite food is carrots and that constant munching has filled him with Vitamin A which is necessary for good eyes.

The versatile carrot is well known for its nutritional value, the color it can add to a drab looking meal, and the just plain good taste of the fresh carrot, raw or cooked. But I'll bet you didn't know that for twenty centuries it has been known to contain love magic!

Now this being the first day of month so closely associated with love, I thought I'd better pass this information on to our young girls who may hope to take advantage of this being a Leap Year.

The Greeks, the Romans, and well known herbalists have all agreed on this: "The carrot serveth for love matters." Many years ago young ladies in the Hebrides believed this so faithfully that they never took a Sunday stroll or went to a dance without raw carrots, that they could offer as dainties. And to you girls who have already caught your man, here's a tip: when you want the man in the house in a loveable good humor, serve him carrots! Now, frankly, girls, I know this means you'd have to serve them seven days a week, so here are some recipes using carrots that will help vary the menu so that you don't get bored in the attempt to have a

Carrot and Beef Stew
2 pounds beef stew meat
3 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 bay leaf
2 cups water
12 small white onions
1 cup shredded carrots
1 cup sliced celery
6 medium sized whole carrots
1/2 teaspoon finely chopped garlic
1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
2 tablespoons flour
1/2 cup water
1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice

Trim off and discard excess fat from meat. Cut meat into 1-inch pieces and place in a 4 quart saucepan. Add salt, bay leaf, water, and one of the onions. Cover and cook slowly 1 1/2 hours or until meat is almost tender. Peel remaining onions and add to meat along with shredded carrots and celery. Peel whole carrots and cut into 1-inch pieces. Add to stew. Cover and cook 35 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Add black pepper. Blend flour with water until smooth and add. Cook 2 to 3 minutes or until thickened. Yields: 6 servings.

Carrots, today, can be actually considered a convenience food for they come to us scrubbed and bagged. The very young carrots can be washed off and cut as desired, while the older carrots should be scraped with a vegetable peeler. And, if you have young children at your house, they'll be fascinated if you put the top slice of the carrot in a jar lid. Put a little bit of water in the lid, and have them watch the carrots as the days go by. Pretty greenery starts to sprout; keep the lid above your sink where it will get some sun.

Carrots are added to many salads for their crunchiness, texture and also the color. Here's a salad you're whole family will enjoy:

Carrot and Raisin Salad
3 cups finely shredded raw carrots
3 cups medium-fine shredded cabbage
1-3 cup seedless raisins
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup mayonnaise
Head lettuce

Combine carrots, cabbage and raisins. (If raisins are dry, place them in a sieve and steam over hot water until they are plump. Cool.) Combine next 4 ingredients. Add to salad just before serving.

Toss lightly. Serve on head lettuce. Yields: 6 servings.

So many of you liked the recipe for Carrot Cake that I gave you last summer. Did you ever try Carrot Pie? It's similar to a pumpkin, sweet potato, or squash pie. And so nutritious!

Carrot Pie
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups mashed carrots
3 large eggs, beaten lightly
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract

Pastry for one-crust 9 inch pie

Combine the first 5 ingredients in a mixing bowl. Add carrots, eggs and mix well. Stir in milk and pure vanilla

At Palm Springs

Sifford Tied By Charles

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Cigar-chomping Charlie Sifford for the third straight day found himself in a tie Friday in the Palm Springs Classic as the competition swung through the third round in this $50,000 golfing marathon.

The 40-year-old National Negro Open champion from Los Angeles shot his second straight one-under-par 71 for a 54-hole, score of 208.

But Sifford couldn't shake his pursuers. British Open champion Bob Charles of New Zealand, came in with a 69 to match chunky Charlie's total.

The weather again was perfect as the 128 pros toured the four courses employed. Each course has par of 36-36-72.

The 27-year-old Charles, who now plays out of De Sota Lakes, Fla., had 34-35-69 at the Eldorado Country Club, while Sifford did the job with 36-35-71 at Bermuda Dunes in a round in which he had 17 pars and one birdie on the 18th hole.

Arnold Palmer, with rounds of 78-71-72, going into the fourth round of this 90-hole grind at 221, and National Open champion Julius Boros, with 71-74-70-215, have a lot of ground to make up in the final two days of play.

PALMERTON — Trailing until the final minute of play, Stroud Union's Mountaineers last night used a 21-point final period to edge Palmerton, 68-67.

The triumph, second in seven starts in Lehigh Valley League play, placed the Mounties in sixth place as the Blue Bombers tumbled to their sixth defeat in seven games.

Five quick points by Stroud Union knotted the count in the final quarter at 52-51. The Mounties finally overcame the Palmerton lead at 66-65 and Bob Robinson's two foul shots in the last minute provided the winning margin.

Campbell Favors Open Subsidizing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Canadian hockey official told Senate investigators Friday that professional hockey players are developed by openly subsidizing "amateurs" with money and free education.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., said this seemed "sunder and morally stronger than the practice of slipping them money to play college football," or providing "amateur" jobs on which they never work.

Clarence Campbell, a Canadian who is president of the National Hockey League, said he regards open subsidies as better for the sport and the players than payments under the table.

No ill affect

Under the program, he said, aid from professional teams doesn't affect a player's amateur standing for other Canadian sports.

The comments came as Campbell and J. Walter Kennedy, president of the National Basketball Association, testified before the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee of which Hart is chairman.

Both men endorsed a proposed bill which would provide uniform antitrust exemptions to professional baseball, football, basketball and hockey. Baseball currently enjoys the exemptions as a result of a series of court decisions, but the bill would write this into formal law.

Top baseball figures endorsed the bill Thursday in the opening session of the two-day hearings. Further hearings are scheduled on the bill, with professional football and other baseball leaders to be heard from, but a date has not been set.

"We are realistic," Campbell said. "As far as we (in Canada) are concerned everyone is an amateur who is not currently engaged in an organized professional hockey league."

He said this includes youngsters who receive money and free education while playing on teams sponsored by National Hockey League clubs.

Campbell added, however, that "unhappily" the Amateur Athletic Union in the United States has strict rules which differ from those in Canada.

Hart was sharply critical of what he called "hypocrisy" in amateur rules in the United States.

Campbell also said his league is making plans to establish sponsored farm teams in northern Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, and possibly other states for training young American hockey players for professional careers. He did not go into detail.

Kennedy, in response to questions, said he feels expansion of the nine-team National Basketball Association is far more likely than creation of a new professional basketball league "in the foreseeable future." He said he was looking ahead about five years.

Kennedy said antitrust exemptions are essential to "insure close and honest competition," and are in the national interest.

Don Heller remained undefeated for the Mountaineers, gaining a 5-1 decision over Glenn Scheiber in the 156-pound class.

Stroud Union built up a 19-0 lead after the first five bouts as Tom Coco and John Chanana scored pins, Dutch Grimm and Mike Folk won decisions and Frank Coco won by forfeit.

Britton Dietrick also registered a fall for the Mounties of Coach Dick Merring. Other Stroudsburg winners by decisions were John Armato and Floyd Lambert.

The results:

97 — Tom Coco (SU) pinned Francis Keppel, 20 secs., body press.

105 — Frank Coco (SU) won by forfeit.

114 — Dutch Grimm (SU) dec. Frank Franginotto, 4-1.

122 — John Chanana (SU) pinned Jim Kurecia, 2:50, body press.

129 — Mike Folk (SU) dec. Ron Rosenberger, 4-1.

135 — Joe Scheiber (W) pinned Ralph Bush, 4:33, body press.

147 — John Armato (SU) pinned Bob Solomon, 2:22, cradle.

156 — Don Heller (SU) dec. Glenn Schierer, 3-1.

167 — Floyd Lambert (SU) dec. Eric Shashinsky, 7-5.

182 — Ron Sadler (W) pinned Joe Heller, 3:06, body press.

Unl. — Mike Solomon (W) dec. Larry Pope 8-2.

Soviet Streak Continues In 9th Winter Olympics

By TED SMITS

Associated Press Sports Editor INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — Fleet and durable Lidia Skoblikova spearheaded continued Soviet domination of the ninth Winter Olympics with another record-smashing speed skating victory Friday as United States forces again were outclassed in their bid for a title.

A rare ray of hope came for the Americans in an 8-0 romp over Germany that kept the defending champions alive in the hockey tournament. However, U. S. chances are slight, since the Yanks already have been whipped by the Russians and still must face powerhouses Canada and Czechoslovakia in the round-robin competition.

Before the U. S. hockey victory, Mrs. Skoblikova, a dimpled blonde school teacher from Siberia, became the first double winner of the Games by taking the women's 1,500-meter speed skating in Olympic record time of 2 minutes, 22.6 seconds.

The 24-year-old holder of four world titles already had won the 500-meter, also setting an Olympic record, and might very well skate off with four gold medals. She still has the 1,000 and 3,000 meters to go.

Mrs. Skoblikova's triumph gave Russia its third gold medal of the current Games and the Soviet contingent picked up another bronze when Berta Kolokolseva took third in the speed skating. Russia now has seven medals over-all, including one silver and three bronze, while no other nation has more than three—and the United States has been shut out completely.

Sears To Victory

Friday's only other gold went to Finland's Viekko Kankkonen, who soared to victory in the special 70-meter ski jump on the final leap of the day.

Russia's potent hockey team, the current world champions, defeated Czechoslovakia 7-5 in a game that may have decided the gold medal in this sport.

The teams are rated one-two in the round robin but the Russians built up a 4-0 edge in the first period and then hung on for the triumph.

German men and women dominated the second heat of the tobogganing singles from which the United States' lone woman entry, Mrs. Dorothy Hirschland of Clonster, N.J., withdrew because of an injury suffered in a spill Thursday night.

Numerous Accidents

There were numerous accidents with at least seven persons sent to hospital. Konstantin Roehrs, petite Germany downhill skier, apparently was the worst injured. She fell on her face during practice and suffered a broken nose.

Elsewhere, Britain rocketed into the lead over the favored Italians in the first phases of two-man bobsledding, and Holland's ice queen, Skjouke Dijkstra, increased her lead in women's figure skating singles as compulsory figures were completed.

No Threats

America's battered girl speed skaters were well back and America's men were not real threats in the ski jumping. Also, U. S. entries are decided longshots in the bobsledding and women's figure skating.

The United States and Germany were scoreless in the rough first period of their hockey match, but the Americans broke loose for two goals in the second period and punched in six more in the third. Roger Christian of Warroad, Minn., and Datas Fryberger of Duluth, Minn., scored twice each. Goalie Pat Rupp of Detroit filling in for the injured Tom Yurkovich, turned in the shutout.

Best Showing

Judith Morstein of Butte, Mont., made the best showing among the American girls in speed skating, taking 15th place in 2:33.3. Marie Lawler of Minneapolis, wrecked by the pain of a leg muscle ailment, was 19th in 2:34.9 and Janice Smith of Rochester, N.Y., was 24th in the final of 30 with a clocking of 2:37.8.

Miss Smith skidded some 25 yards past the finish line, plowed into a snowbank, and was carried by stretcher away from the course. But she was unhurt. Miss Lawler's shin splits probably will keep her out of further competition in the 1964 games.

Rousing Chants

Mrs. Skoblikova, cheered on by the rousing chants of "Lee-da, Lee-da" by her fellow Russians, had an almost three-second edge over runner-up Kija Mustonen of Finland, who clocked 2:25.5.

There was a different leader after each of the three jumps in the special 70-meter event, decided on the best two of three jumps with points awarded on distance and style.

Kankkonen, after a poor first effort, came back with a leap of 262 feet, six inches and then captured the gold medal with a flawless jump of 259-2. He had 229.90 points to 226.30 for Toralf Engan of Norway, the leader after the second jump. Torgeir Brandtzaeg of Norway won the bronze medal with 222.90 points.

Distance

Josef Matour of Czechoslovakia held the lead after the first jump with the best distance of the day, 264 feet.

John Balfanz of Minneapolis was first among the Americans, placing 10th with two jumps of 241-4 and 206-50 points. Gene Kotarek of Duluth, Minn., was 14th; Ansten Samuelsen of Boulder, Colo., 23rd; and Dave Hicks of Duluth 41st.

Miss Dijkstra, reigning champion of women's figure skating, takes a commanding lead into Sunday's free-skating wind-up. The sturdy Dutch girl finished the five compulsory figures with a sizable margin over Austria's Regime Heitzer — 9.5 ordinals and 1,113.2 points to 20 and 1,074.8.

All three American girls are in the first 10, but still virtually out of contention. Christine Hailer of Colorado Springs is sixth with 53 ordinals and 1,000.00 points; 15-year-old U.S. champion Peggy Fleming of Pasadena, Calif., slipped to eighth with 81 and 985.6; Albertino Noyes of Arlington, Mass., was ninth with 88 and 951.3.

Witnesses Assembly Set For Bucks

EAST STROUDSBURG — Doylestown, Bucks county seat, will be host to 17 congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses comprising Pennsylvania Circuit No. 2, Feb. 28, 29 and Mar. 1. The assembly will turn the Key Rollarena at the junction of Routes 611 and 313 into an enlarged Kingdom Hall.

"Although a congregation was formed in Doylestown years ago, the holding of an assembly there at this time is history-making for the Witnesses," said Stephen Bortlik, presiding minister of the East Stroudsburg congregation, "and is in harmony with their growth and world-wide preaching activities."

"Using the theme 'Around the World with Jehovah's Witnesses,' he continued, "the meetings will emphasize and acquaint the many people of good will in the area with accurate Bible knowledge and magnify the Creator's promise to establish 'new heavens and a new earth.' This is 'good news' so much needed at this time."

David J. Thomas and Richard B. Palms, district and circuit supervisors, respectively, of the Watchtower Bible & Tract Society in New York, will be the principal speakers.

Mr. Thomas will deliver the main sermon, "Facing up to the Urgency of Our Times, Sunday, March 1 at 3 p.m."

Other ministers on the program from the various congregations in the circuit will be announced later. The public is invited to attend all sessions which are free.

The class meets both for study and business, and is currently planning events for the Early Spring season.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 1. If the number is less than 6, add 1. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Despite Early Differences

Price Sees County Board Molding Into Useful Team

(This is the sixth of a series of special articles on the plans and problems of the new county commissioners.)

By BOB CLARK
Daily Record Managing Editor

STROUDSBURG — John M. Price, a candidate who received the largest number of votes in last November's election for county commissioner, aims to work for "all the people of Monroe" despite early setbacks

Fund Drive For Library Nears End

BANGOR — Bangor Junior Woman's Club is sponsoring a fund-raising drive for the Bangor Public Library.

A spokesman for the club said the campaign would end this weekend but that contributions would be accepted after the drive is completed.

A variety of new books are being displayed at the library during the drive this week.

Additional children's books received are "The Crystal Cabinet" by Horace Gregory and M. A. Zaturenska; "The Congress," Gerald W. Johnson; "Possum," Robert M. McClung; "Take Sky," David McCord; "Discovering Scientific Method," Hy Ruchlis; "Portals to the Past," Katherine B. Shippen; "Forever Free," Dorothy Sterling.

Other books are "Book of Laughs," "Book of Riddles," both by Bennett Cerf; "Dr. Seuss' ABC," "Put Me in the Zoo," Robert Lophire; "A Fish Out of Water," Helen Palmer.

New Christmas books received are "Bring Me a Torch," A. Adams; "Boys and Girls Around the World," "Away in a Manger," "Lamb and the Child," D. Trever; "Doodles the Deer Horse," Stoo Hamble; "Christmas Nutsell Library," Helary Knight; "How Santa Claus Saved Christmas," Phyllis McGinley; "Christmas Gift," Cherianna Rollins; "Night it Rained Toys," Dorothy Stephenson and "Shepherd's Ward," Leonard Wibberley.

during his brief tenureship on the county board.

Price, a semi-retired businessman, who doesn't profess to be a politician, sees a team molding in the courthouse that will give the taxpayers the best for their money.

However, the man who came out of nowhere to become one of the largest vote-getters in Monroe County's political history, isn't foolish enough to feel that life will be a bed of roses the next four years.

Each An Individualist

"Each man is an individualist. I have my own way of thinking and doing things and Stanley (Rader) and Stu (Pipher) have definite ideas on certain problems and situations."

Price has definite thoughts about his way of serving the public. "I will not pre-judge value of 'name catching' programs until I see the value to the community measured against the cost to the taxpayers," he said in an interview with The Daily Record.

Pin-pointing his remarks, he emphasized, "Community planning is basically good, however, I want to see the finished ordinance on zoning before I will take a position."

Got Demo Voters Support

Monroe County's Republican commissioner, an office holder who can say he got plenty of democratic votes despite a GOP label, assures anyone within listening distance that "I will not tolerate a zoning program where the small citizen has to pay for influence to get zoning errors corrected."

Price's thinking on this problem, which Monroe residents will come face to face in the not too far future is "everyone should be educated on the assets and pitfalls of planning, plus learning all about the ins and outs of zoning."

A slow but forceful talker, Price does not intend to let party politics stand in his way to administering a sound county economical program. He asks, "Why should any party tell me what to do?"

This remark was in reference to his supporting Democrat William Reaser — "a qualified and responsible person" — for chief county clerk.

"I've watched this boy grow up, go to school, go away to the Army and followed his years of employment with Worthington Mower. We've got a good conscientious employee there," he said.

Concerned About Airport

Price is very much concerned about the operation of the airport at Mt. Pocono. Emphatically he says, "The airport at Mt. Pocono must be operated so that the county is not spending $10,000 a year (as committed by the previous board of commissioners) for a project used by so small a portion of our population."

The 60-year-old novice politician who earlier in life had set a goal for himself to be a commissioner, figures the county has to take more than a passing interest in the airport.

"Over a period of years we have been a mother to that strip on the mountain. It is high time it got on its own feet and started to walk," he declared.

For a man who has been in office only a short while, Price has dug into practically all facets of county government in his attempt to give "the taxpayers a well rounded and healthy program."

"I want to divide the county home (at Kellersville) into two programs. One phase would be for the senior and the other for the active elderly. It is inhumane to place elderly people who have all their mental capacities with those who, because of age, have become senile."

He is determined to put across this proposal "even if it takes me the entire four years."

Went to People

If ever a political candidate went to the people, Price did when he campaigned last fall. "I'm no different in makeup or mind now, either," the man who knocked on practically every door in the county said.

"I campaigned on the basis of meeting the individual voter. I expect to vote on the board for proposals that are best for the greatest number of people."

"If I weigh a proposal and figure yes this is what the people want, then I'll vote yes. If my instinct tells me another proposal will hurt the majority of the taxpayers then you can bet your bottom dollar I'll vote no."

Bloodmobile In S-burg Monday

STROUDSBURG — The Lions call for blood has been heard in the County.

Last week the Stroudsburg Lions Club urged an all-out community effort to make its Feb. 3 Red Cross blood drive a huge success.

Edward Katz, club president, in issuing his call, said: "We need all the help we can get. We can't do it alone."

Among the first to respond was the Stroudsburg Kiwanis

Club. Walter McClelland, a past Kiwanis president and gallon donor, phoned: "You can count me in, and I'm going to talk it up among our members."

Another group to offer its support was the Sigma Pi fraternity of East Stroudsburg State College. Larry Moyer, president, said: "Our organization is very interested in helping out on community projects. Although most of us are under 21 and will need parental consent, we plan to meet the Bloodmobile on Monday."

Aided In 1963

Moyer reported that his fraternity also donated to the February blood drive in 1963.

The Tobyhanna Army Depot, a staunch supporter of area blood drives, will also provide donors on Monday. The donors will be military and civilian volunteers who missed the Bloodmobile at the depot in January.

Katz expressed satisfaction with all the proffered support. "This will help us meet our quota of 125 pints," he said. "But let's not stop at that. Every adult Monroe County resident in good health has a community responsibility to give at least once or twice a year."

Hours 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The Bloodmobile will be at the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The Red Cross will provide transportation and baby sitting service at the church for those who request it. The number to call for these services is 421-0660.

Purdy Asks Pay Hike For State Police

HARRISBURG (AP) — State police commissioner E. Wilson Purdy appealed to the General Assembly yesterday to raise the pay of his 2,300-man police force by $821,662.

"The current scale provides a sub-standard salary with unrealistic, low merit increases..." He testified at legislative hearings on Gov. Scranton's proposed $1.168 billion budget.

Purdy told the joint House-Senate appropriations committee that presently a state trooper, who served 25 years without a promotion, could look forward in that time to a salary increase totaling only $1,278.

The department's proposal, he said, would increase that raise to $2,360.

State Treasurer Grace M. Sloan, a Democrat, asked the legislators to provide $16,000 which was not included in the Republican administration's budget for salary increases in her department.

"No calculation whatsoever was included for normal salary increments which will inevitably accrue during the fiscal year 1964-65," she said.

"The expected adjustment by the budget secretary was not made and no provision is, therefore, made for the treasury employees in the governor's budget."

Budget Secretary Martin H. Brackbill answered that no adjustment was made because "we have no complement control over these independently elected officers." He said:

"We presented the budget request ($30,072,662) just as we received it."

Stroud Union Math Club To Get Charter

STROUDSBURG — The Mu Alpha Theta, an honorary mathematics club at Stroud Union High School, will hold its charter night Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Room 101 at the high school.

Nevin Nonnemacher, club faculty advisor, said certificates and membership cards will be given to 45 charter members at the meeting.

The Stroud Union chapter of Mu Alpha Theta is one of only three such clubs in northeastern Pennsylvania. Membership requires each student to have at least two years of academic mathematics and have maintained at least a "B" average in all school subjects.

Charles Arnold is head of the mathematics department at the high school.

Famous last words — "If he won't dim his, I won't dim mine."
